LEGEND OF BURIED GOLD REVIVED BY MURDER ARRESTS

Four Men Taken Into Custody in Iowa, Charged With Crime 47 Years Old; One 70.

BOOTY SAID TO BE $90,000

Missouri Woman Declared to Have Witnessed the Tragedy—Called to Testify.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DES MOINES, Mo., July 9.—A tradition of outlaws and buried gold, which has been told in Southwest Iowa for almost a half-century, has suddenly taken the form of an actual charge against real persons as the result of action by Attorney-General Cosson and the prosecuting authorities of Taylor County.

John and Henry Damewood were arrested, 77 years old, and Sam Scrivner, 75 years old, a cattle dealer. All were arrested as the result of an investigation into the supposed murder, in 1868, of a wealthy cattleman whose name no one appears to know, and whose treasure, $90,000, is said to have been buried on a farm near Siam, Taylor County.

The sole witness to the murder, who was a child at the time is supposed to have happened, is now a woman, 60 years old, living in Quitman, Mo. Her maiden name was Marie Collins. She is now Mrs. Porter. She is said to have told Jesse and Frank James, Missouri outlaws, about the treasure buried on her father's farm, causing them to make several visits to Taylor County in the hope of finding it. They were not successful.

C. A. Robbins, Assistant Attorney-General, announced at Villisca today that Mrs. Porter will be called next Tuesday to testify against the four men arrested.

Robbins said that he has absolute proof that at least $40,000 of the contents of the treasure buried on the Collins farm near Siam, Iowa, had been dug up in the last 12 years.

The Damewoods were taken to Bedford shortly before noon today and arraigned. They pleaded not guilty and were released on bonds of $500 each. No further action was taken during the day on the cases of Huntman and Scrivner.

Scrivner, who is 75 years old, is reported to be very wealthy. He is married. His wife is said to be a white-haired man, 77 years old, who is said to have lost most of a fortune he once had, in attempts to find the hidden treasure. The Damewood brothers are not so well situated financially. All four men vigorously denied the charges against them.

Counterfeiters Used a Cave.
The legend of the robbery and burial of the treasure in that, in 1868, a gang of five counterfeiters had its "plant" on a 10-acre place in Taylor County, near Siam. Samuel Anderson occupied an adjoining cabin, and the Collins girl, with her mother, lived near. An older sister of the girl is said to have married one of the gang. A cave was the counterfeiters' headquarters, the story runs. In the fall of the year, the story is, the gang learned that a wealthy cattleman was coming that way and that he would carry a large sum of money, for lack of banking facilities there. The visitor is said to have been waylaid, robbed and killed, and Marie Collins is said to have seen his body, as the murderers carried it away in an old quilt. The men are said to have terrorized the girl into silence.

The girl is also said to have seen the chest which had contained the murdered man's money, in the wagon where the robbers had placed it. It was buried near by, according to the tale, while the body was thrown into an abandoned well.

Chart Revealing Treasure Was Lost.
One of the gang made out a chart showing the location of the treasure, according to the story, but the house in which they kept this chart burned before the members of the gang had dared to dig up the chest. Later Samuel Anderson came into possession of the land, and he was followed by Marie Collins, who he was asked, 12 years ago, to make a search for the treasure, and he says he was digging for it, when he was stopped by the men who had started him at the work. These men, he said, then took charge of the work and refused to make any agreement with him as to a division of the money. Anderson said he decided recently to bring a civil suit for title to one-fourth share of the money, and word of the intended suit came to the Attorney-General, causing the inquiry and the arrests of Huntman, Scrivner and the Damewood brothers.

Prisoners to Be Arranged Tuesday.
Jonathan J. Dark, one-time member of the gang of counterfeiters, is said to have followed Marie Collins, his young sister-in-law, to her new home in Missouri several years after the tragedy, in an effort to keep her from disclosing the secret. He was shot by another sister, it is said, and Marie is supposed then to have told the James boys about the treasure.

ARM OF GEN. GOURAUD CUT OFF
PARIS, July 9.—Gen. H. J. E. Gouraud, commander of a French expeditionary force in the Dardanelles, who was wounded recently in the operations on the Gallipoli peninsula, has had an arm amputated on the voyage to France.

Gen. Gouraud is suffering from fractures of the right thigh and the left leg, but is reported as "doing well."

$20,000,000 FRENCH LOAN IN U. S. VIRTUALLY ARRANGED

J. P. Morgan & Co. and Group of Bankers to Participate—Credit to Be for Commercial Purposes.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Negotiations virtually have been completed here for a new French credit amounting to $20,000,000 to be used exclusively for commercial purposes. J. P. Morgan & Co. and a group of national bank and trust companies will participate in the transaction, it is stated.

The loan will take the form of acceptance to be drawn by French banking houses upon bankers here who are parties to the arrangement. The loan is to be guaranteed by the Bank of France, and it is understood that the acceptances are to be secured by French Treasury notes.

This is one of several transactions undertaken here to offset the effect upon French exchange of the great expenditures made by France in this country both for ordinary requirements and for war supplies.

COUNT VON ZEPPELIN'S BIRTHDAY OBSERVED THROUGHOUT GERMANY

Kaiser, in Message, Emphasizes Value of His Dirigible in "War Against England"—He Is 75.

AMSTERDAM, July 8, via London, July 9.—Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin's seventy-fifth birthday was observed today (July 8) by celebrations in all parts of Germany, according to the dispatches from Berlin.

Count von Zeppelin, who is at Stuttgart, conveying several thousand telegrams of congratulation, including messages from the Emperors of Germany and Austria and the Sultan of Turkey. The German Emperor's message emphasized the great value of Zeppelin dirigibles in the "present war against England."

Gen. von Bissing, the German military Governor, a few days ago issued an order prohibiting the demonstrative display of Belgian colors as personal adornment. It was obeyed, but the following day almost every Belgian man, woman and child blossomed out with an ivy spray, the significance of which, in the language of flowers, is "attachment, united unto death."

IVY SPRAYS WORN BY BELGIANS

BRUSSELS, via London, July 9.—The Belgians have suddenly adopted the practice of wearing sprays of ivy as an expression of loyalty to Belgium and the allies.

Gen. von Bissing, the German military Governor, a few days ago issued an order prohibiting the demonstrative display of Belgian colors as personal adornment. It was obeyed, but the following day almost every Belgian man, woman and child blossomed out with an ivy spray, the significance of which, in the language of flowers, is "attachment, united unto death."

GERMAN BEER OUTPUT REDUCED

AMSTERDAM, July 9.—The German brewery associations have ordered all breweries to reduce their output of beer to 40 per cent of the normal on account of the shortage of barley.

The municipalities of Berlin and Munich have called special meetings of the municipal councils to discuss measures to prevent the continual increase in food prices.

TELLS OF BIRTH OF MAN WHO CLAIMS $200,000 ESTATE

Woman Testifies for Wabash Engineer Who Says He Is Son of Randall R. Gordon.

Illinoisan Who Lived for Several Years in St. Louis Was Thought to Be a Bachelor.

Adolph Scott-Gordon, 35 years old, of Decatur, Ill., a Wabash engineer, appealed before Judge Holtcamp in Probate Court today to press his claim to the entire estate of Randall R. Gordon, a capitalist, who died in St. Louis in September, 1913, leaving an estate valued at $200,000.

The engineer presented testimony to prove that Gordon, who was generally regarded as a bachelor, was his father. No mention was made of a son in the capitalist's will, which left $40,000 to the First Christian Church, 3126 Locust street, and the remainder to two brothers, John M. and Thomas J. Gordon of Christian County, Ill., where the capitalist was buried.

The Gordon estate has been subjected to considerable litigation. Three brothers not mentioned in the will filed a contest in Illinois courts, which was settled. Mrs. Maude Close of 714 Clara avenue filed a claim of $10,000 against the estate for services in nursing and caring for Gordon, and she alleged Gordon had asked her to marry him. Jurors in the Probate Court and Circuit Court gave her judgment for $5,000, but the Circuit Court has granted a new trial.

Tells of a Courtship.
Mrs. H. B. Dills, who lives near Decatur, testified that she was the claimant's maternal aunt and that Gordon was his father. Her sister, Mary Evelyn Scott, lived with their parents at Blue Mound, Ill. In 1879, she said, Gordon courted her sister, taking her to church and entertainments.

The witness said his sister, accompanied by Gordon, came to her farm in December, 1879, and told that they had been married in St. Louis. They lived at her home as man and wife for three months, she said, Gordon paying the board and buying her sister's clothing.

Mrs. Dills said she went with her sister to their parents' home, where the claimant was born May 6, 1880. Their parents, she said, did not know of Evelyn's marriage until she returned home for the May event.

The witness said her sister died where the claimant was 18 months old, that the child then lived with his grandfather until her death, and then lived with relatives. He was known as Adolph Scott, although she said her sister's friends had called her Mrs. Gordon.

Mrs. Dills declared she never saw Gordon at the house after her sister's death, but that once, when the claimant was 3 or 4 years old, she took him to a Decatur store, by appointment with Gordon, and that Gordon met them in the store, placed the boy on the head and said: "This boy will be the only heir I'll ever have."

Charles M. May, attorney for the estate, indicated, by his cross-examination of Mrs. Dills that the estate would seek to show that Gordon and Miss Scott never had been married.

Lock of Baby's Hair.
Mrs. Close testified Gordon had told her of his being married and having a son about the age of her. His wife died soon after the birth of the boy and the latter was living at Decatur, the witness said Gordon told her, Mrs. Close became acquainted with Gordon in 1911, when she was demonstrating coffee. She said she served some coffee to Gordon and the latter remarked:

Lieut. Reginald A. J. Warneford, a British airman, field near Paris, who 10 days before had won the Victoria Cross for destroying, single-handed, a giant Zeppelin airship, was killed at the same time.

JUDGE TELLS NEW CITIZENS THEY ARE NOT HYPHENATED

"Just Americans," Arkansas Jurist Says in Naturalization Proceedings Here.

Frederick Busche, 64 years old, a tax collector, of 2227 Red Bud avenue, and his brother, Charles Busche, 57 years old, a baker, of 2221 Benton street, who were brought to this country from Germany when they were small children, have lived here ever since, have voted since they were 21 and have served in the State Legislature, were naturalized in the United States District Court today by Judge Triebler of Little Rock.

The Busches had regarded themselves as citizens and had voted and held office in the belief that their father was naturalized, but when a question was raised a few months ago by the Board of Election Commissioners they were unable to produce proof and had to take steps to make their title clear to American citizenship.

Frederick was 1 year old when their parents brought them to this country. When they became of age their mother told them that their father had been naturalized and they began voting and kept it up through the years. Frederick was Mayor of Lincoln, Mo., from 1884 to 1888, and was a Representative in the State Legislature for eight years, Charles was a member of the State Senate from 1889 to 1891.

When Judge Triebler had administered the oath of allegiance to Charles Busche he said: "Remember, you are an American citizen now. You know, we are not making any hyphenated Americans here, only Americans."

He said he was a naturalized citizen having once been a German subject.

"But I don't consider myself a German-American," he said. "I am just an American citizen."

Judge Triebler, to make the administration of the oath more impressive, required every person in the courtroom to rise each time that a new citizen took the oath of allegiance. The Court took up during the day the applications of about 60 men for citizenship.

DRY SPEAKERS USE AUTO ON "WATER WAGON" TOUR

Party Starts From Atlantic City on Trip Over Lincoln Highway to San Francisco.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 9.—The national convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America today unanimously adopted resolutions formulated by the board of directors of the organization urging Congress to submit the question of national prohibition to the people of the country by referring to the state legislatures for ratification a joint resolution proposing a prohibitory amendment to the Federal Constitution.

A feature of the morning session was the starting of an automobile on the "water wagon tour" over the Lincoln highway, which will end in San Francisco in September.

The Rev. Howard H. Russell, who founded the Anti-Saloon League 22 years ago, is at the head of the party. Campaign speeches will be made all the way across the Continent.

JURY IN LAWSON CASE INTIMIDATED, MEMBER ALLEGES

Bailiff Accused of Tampering With Panel That Convicted Labor Leader of Murder.

By Associated Press.
TRINIDAD, Colo., July 9.—Charges that the verdict by which John R. Lawson, international executive board member of the United Workers of America, was obtained through intimidation and jury tampering by a court bailiff, were tried in the District Court here today in the arguments on Lawson's motion for a new trial.

The arguments were before Judge Granby Hillyer, who presided in the Lawson case. A motion to prohibit Judge Hillyer from hearing several additional strike cases is pending in the Colorado Supreme Court.

Lawson was convicted May 3 of first degree murder in connection with the killing of John Nimmo, a deputy sheriff, in a battle near Ludlow, Colo., between deputies and striking coal miners.

The motion for a new trial filed by Lawson's attorney was accompanied by an affidavit signed by Grover Hall, a member of the jury which convicted the labor leader. In it Hall declares he believes Lawson innocent.

He swears that during the more than 40 hours of jury deliberation he was told repeatedly by Frank Gooden, the bailiff in charge of the jury, that his wife was dangerously ill.

The affidavit makes the further charge that on May 3 the jury was not taken to the usual hour and that the Lord Kitcheners' motor ride to the Guild Hall untethered British enthusiasm and the scene has had no precedent in London since the outbreak of the war. Handkerchiefs were waved and hundreds of thousands cheered the Secretary of War as he passed through an uninterrupted avenue of shouting men, women and children.

The text of Lord Kitcheners' speech follows in part:

"Hitherto the remarks I have found it necessary to make on recruiting have been mainly addressed to the House of Lords, but I have felt that the time has now come when I may with advantage make another and larger demand on the resources of English manhood."

"Enjoying as I do the privilege of a free man of this great city, I am sure my words uttered in the heart of London, will spread broadcast throughout the nation."

The Secretary of War here referred to the bravery of the Indian forces and the Canadians, fighting "alongside their British and French comrades in Flanders and presenting a solid and impenetrable front."

"Pushing Dardanelles Campaign."
"In the Dardanelles," Lord Kitcheners continued, "the Australians and New Zealanders combined already have accomplished a feat of arms almost unparalleled in the history of the world."

"Strengthened by the unflinching support of our fellow citizens across the seas, we seek to develop our own military resources to their utmost limits and this is the purpose which brings us together today."

GREAT THROGS IN STREETS AND HALL CHEER KITCHENER

Thousands in London Taken to Show Confidence in Him.

By Associated Press.
LONDON, July 9.—Great crowds assembled in and around the Guild Hall and the routes leading to the hall today to hear Field Marshal Earl Kitcheners address a meeting to institute a special recruiting campaign.

The City of London territorial regiments lined the thoroughfares by which the Field Marshal journeyed and the police made special traffic arrangements. Hoping to get seats at places of vantage in the Guild Hall, scores of persons gathered outside the doors of the building at 10 o'clock this morning, although the War Secretary's address was not due to begin until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Earl Kitcheners' subject was "the need for recruiting for the army," but the enthusiasm of the meeting and the crowds which appeared were attributed to the public's spontaneous desire to demonstrate its confidence in the Field Marshal in the face of the attacks upon him which a certain section of the press has been making.

"We require more men and still more men," said Earl Kitcheners, sounding the keynote of his address, "but the situation in this respect is immeasurably better now than it was 10 months ago. The military position today, however, is as serious as it was then."

GERMAN NOTE GIVEN TO GERARD; TEXT PROBABLY AS FORECAST

Failure to Modify Document Causes Feeling of Pessimism in Washington.

WASHINGTON TO GET REPLY BY SUNDAY AT THE LATEST

Likely to Go Before Cabinet at Tuesday Session—Denial of Responsibility for Americans' Deaths on Lusitania Disappointing.

By Associated Press.
BERLIN, July 9.—The German reply to the American note regarding the sinking of the Lusitania and submarine warfare was delivered to James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador in Berlin late last night.

The note is now being translated and it will go forward to Washington some time today.

Certain paragraphs embodying the principal features of the German offer already have been dispatched to Washington, but the final sections of the communication probably will not be on the wire for transmission before a late hour this afternoon. This is because the note is of considerable length.

The text of the note will meanwhile be withheld from the newspaper correspondents and permission for the transmission of summaries is being withheld. This is done to give the official version the right of way.

Among the items given out for distribution abroad today by the Overseas News Agency were the following:

"Political and even naval circles are beginning to tire of the daily editorials in the Deutsche Tages Zeitung against a German-American understanding on the submarine question. The Tages Zeitung's attitude is considered sufficient proof that such an understanding is desirable."

"The Chemnitz Socialistic newspaper, the Volkzeitung, has received a letter from its editor, who is fighting with the German forces on the Eastern front, regarding the recently published peace proclamation of the Socialistic party. The editor called it not a political measure, but suicidal insanity. Germany, he said, may treat for peace whenever she pleases without fearing the consequences. On the contrary, it is only the certainty that they will have to suffer fearfully from their own acts that can bring Germany's enemies to their senses, he declared."

Failure to Modify Note Causes Feeling of Pessimism in Capital

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Delivery of Germany's reply to the American note on submarine warfare to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin last night should bring the official text to the State Department here probably tomorrow and undoubtedly by Sunday.

President Wilson is expected to return from the Summer White House at Cornish to lay the reply before the Cabinet at a meeting Tuesday.

All officials here realize that there probably has been no essential change from the form in which the reply was sent to the Berlin Foreign Office to Ambassador Gerard. On the basis of that outline, the American Government declined to engage in any supplementary negotiations, which the United States could not accept without sacrificing many of its rights.

Speculation as to Next Step.
Meanwhile there is a renewal of the tension over what the next step will be, if the text of the German reply bears out the unofficial outlines, which indicated that it would be so unsatisfactory to the United States.

Although officials would not comment, the general undertone in official quarters was one of disappointment. It was evident that another critical stage in the relations between Germany and the United States was at hand.

One course which some well informed officials considered probable would be to reject the German proposals and notify the German Government in effect that the United States intended to insist on the principle of visit and search for all unarmed vessels of any nationality carrying Americans and that specific violations of those rights would determine the next step in the American policy.

As for the Lusitania case, however, failure by Germany to admit liability for the loss of more than 100 American lives is a phase of the situation on which there were today few suggestions as to what the United States should do.

Some of the President's advisers have repeatedly counseled that the United States should not be so hasty in its action, that it remained only for the British States to have no diplomatic intercourse with the German Government, unless the intent of the act was denied and reparation was promised.

How Americans May Be Safe.
Germany has suggested that Americans may travel on belligerent ships if there is a guarantee in advance that they carry no munitions of war and are unarmed and the vessels are marked in such a way as to be distinguishable from the war zone to German submarines and if there is notification of the departure and character of the ships.

To comply with the suggestions in the view of many officials, would be an unequal act on the part of the American Government.

BOTHA CONQUERS WHOLE OF GERMAN SOUTHWEST AFRICA

Surrender of Teutonic Colonial Forces to Commander of British Is Unconditional; Campaign Will Now Be Continued Against German East Africa.

FRENCH IN ADVANCE CAPTURE 800 MEN

Gain of 700 Yards on 600-Yard Front in Vosges; German Submarine Sinks British Steamship; Trawler Blown Up by a Mine.

PRETORIA, South Africa, July 8.—Gen. Botha, commander of the forces of the Union of South Africa has accepted the surrender of all German military forces in German Southwest Africa.

The Germans surrendered unconditionally following the issuance of Gen. Botha's ultimatum, which expired at 12 o'clock Thursday evening. With the exception of the necessary army of occupation, the citizens army will be brought back home as quickly as possible.

German Unable to Regain Captured Trenches; Lose Others.

BERLIN, July 8. The official statement today says: "Up to the present we have not succeeded in clearing the enemy from the trench section which we lost the day before yesterday west of Soissons."

East of Ally, unsuccessful isolated attacks took place. We captured by storm several French lines of trenches extending over a width of 50 yards and gaining our newly captured positions in the forests of Le Pretre to the east.

On this occasion we captured 250 prisoners and four machine guns. Other important but unimportant patrol fights took place between Ally and the digelle.

After artillery preparation, the enemy attacked Hill 631 near Ban-De-Sapt, which we captured on June 22 by storm. We were forced to evacuate the destroyed trenches on top of the hill. In the southeastern theaters of the war the situation remains unchanged.

Campaign to Be Pushed Against Germans in East Africa.

LONDON, July 8.—The surrender of the German force in German Southwest Africa does not mean the end of the campaign of the great war and releases for service elsewhere the South African contingent.

The campaign against the important German Africa colony was considered vital that all the resources of the South African Union were used in it, but its conclusion probably means that, despite the fact that German East Africa remains a German colony, it will be dispatched to France, while additional forces will continue the campaign in East Africa.

The final disposition of German Southwest Africa has not been officially announced, but it generally is believed here that it will become a part of the South African Union.

After suppressing the rebellion against British authority in the Union of South Africa, Gen. Botha took command of British operations against German Southwest Africa and headed an invasion of that territory late in February. His operations were reported to be uniformly successful.

The forces under his command captured Olymbingue May 4. Two days later it was announced that he had occupied the important railway junction of Karibib and other stations after a march of 25 miles over a waterless waste.

The road to Windhoek, capital of the German territory, was opened by the occupation of Keetmanshoop. Windhoek was taken May 23 without opposition on the part of the German forces. Martial law was proclaimed throughout the conquered territory.

Reports from London recently have stated that the surrender of all the German forces was expected soon. British military experts have contended that Gen. Botha has conducted a masterly campaign.

German Southwest Africa is on the West coast of Africa, extending from the Orange river to the Cunene river, about 900 miles. The area is 225,450 square miles. The population is 79,556, chiefly Hottentots and Bushmen. The European population in 1913 was 14,818, of whom 12,392 were Germans. The military force, including police, is given by the latest reports as 2902.

British Steamer Bound for Archangel Sunk by Submarine.

LONDON, July 8.—The Wilson Line steamship Guidoo, from Hull for Archangel, Russia, was sunk off the coast of Scotland yesterday by a German submarine. The crew of the Guidoo was saved.

The Russian bark Marion Lightbody was sunk off Queenstown today by a German submarine. The crew was saved. The bark, which was of 2175 tons gross, left Valparaiso March 25 for an English port.

The Grimby trawler Cheshire was blown up by a mine in the North Sea Wednesday. All the crew with the exception of the chief engineer were killed.

Mother and the children will enjoy the trip to the country and a few weeks' rest at one of the farm homes to which summer boarders are invited in the POST-DISPATCH Resort and Country Board columns, first week—speciality supply.

U.S. AND GERMANY DO NOT UNDERSTAND EACH OTHER, MAXIMILIAN HARDEN SAYS

American Known Too Much as Money Chaser to Teutons, Editor Says—Masses See One Another Too Much as Caricatures.

England's Mastery of Seas Broken by Submarine Warfare, Which America Cannot Justly Ask Germany to Give Up, He Says.

By MAXIMILIAN HARDEN, Editor and Publisher of Die Zukunft.

(Herr Harden, who is one of the most powerful journalists in Germany, has written this analysis of the controversy between Germany and America over the Lusitania case, in the hope of bringing about a better understanding of motives and ideals between his country and ours.)

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

BERLIN, July 8.—Sin may be committed on both sides of the Atlantic. The average American has heard far more of Germany about lack of freedom, feudal autocracy and aristocracy, lack outwardly of culture, and militarism, than he has of her strength, and the religious ideals of the German people.

On the other hand, many Germans the American is known too much as a dollar chaser, a money maker, without ideals. Too little has the German been told of the intellectual and idealism, what a tremendous power to do good and determination and will power to work unselfishly in assisting its development, exists in the people of North America.

Your countrymen certainly should have been able to judge and recognize, from the German-American living in America, although perhaps, each one of them is not always an example of our best—that Germans are neither barbarians nor slaves, neither dishonorable nor unfit and incapable of self-determination of their lives.

From afar off, the German saw only a small crowd of American tourists, rich men or globe trotters, not always representing the best elements of your country. The masses of both nations see one another too much as caricatures, reflected in the distorted mirror of satirical publications. That is revenging itself in the tremendous crisis of this war.

Justified Submarine Warfare. The policy of the United States, the manifest interests of which lies in South America and the Far East, perhaps doesn't recognize yet that this war will answer the question, shall England, which is a world power, remain the judge of Europe on a continent on which she has but one small point of support, Gibraltar? This question is already answered today by the rapid and revolutionary development of technology.

The new form of submarine warfare will in its evolution make impossible any tyranny at sea in the future. The war has already decided that England has lost the undisputed and absolute dominion of the sea. She will have to adapt herself to that. No successes on land will effect that.

America, even basing her demands on the basis of principles of humanity, cannot ask to give up this new form of warfare, the only form that remains to us in the blockade of England against Germany. America, a great, but young nation, inspired by progress for the future, cannot use its power to support what is obsolete, something that is passing away and must pass away.

The majority of Germans believe that America is supplying our enemies with arms and ammunition in violation of law and customs. This is a wrong belief. According to the Hague conventions American private firms can sell to whom they like. But the realistic intellect of Americans must ask itself the question: Can we demand of the Germans, on the strength of friendship for us, to give up the policy of destroying ships, the cargo of which would kill, maim and wound numbers of their sons and brothers?

Could we do it in their situation? Is this manufacture of arms and ammunition so important in our business and national economics as to justify us in engaging the enmity of a people which, like ourselves, is not in the descending but the ascending scale of humanity and development, civilization and culture?

Favors a Business Treaty.

Would not it be more rational either to influence England to give up her blockade on food stuffs, which is only tending to develop still further German economical traits, or to forbid the export of arms and munitions?

America is free to answer the questions as she sees fit. Neither of the two countries can hope, through this, to gain anything of the other. Both must learn to respect one another. I have no criticism to pass on America. I believe the American Government has an earnest desire to be and remain neutral in the best sense of that word, but I feel that America in its international course is now confronted by the same problem that has occupied the American people so much in their domestic politics.

Special privilege, private profit of certain small groups and concerns, or the benefit, welfare and happiness of the entire American people, to be decisive in the policy of the nation? It is not a matter of getting around momentary difficulties with fine words. Both peoples need an open, sober, reasonable trade and business treaty agreement, without secrecy or back door.

Whatever is done it will probably fix and determine the relations between America and Germany for more than a generation. Shall mistrust and prejudice reign or shall the influence of Shakespeare upon Goethe?

Scull then read the headings of the clippings. None of them concerns the murder of Mrs. Muentner. One article was entitled "The effect of liquor in causing insanity." The other was headed: "Chicago Lunatic at Large."

Then followed these captions: "Pastor says State asylums run for the benefit of politicians." An example in point is that of a graduate of college and medical schools, an expert on criminology, who is now reported to be an inmate of a cell in the jail in Elgin, a physical and mental wreck.

The headings of other articles which Holt clipped and carefully preserved for a decade or more, are: "French law of innocence," "Make heroes of murderers," "Admits killing a stepchild," "Pro of murder for Sunday," "Evils pay penalty for atrocious deed," "Negro murders four," "Man hunt on," "Woman is held for murder," "Murders in Chicago," "Lord Barrington must die," "Death for woman murderer," "Convicted of poisoning man," and "Thaw is sure to kill."

Premature Explosion of Dynamite in a Connecticut Quarry Sends Piece of Tamper Into Blaster's Throat.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 8.—With a four-foot stick running through his neck, Patrick Sullivan died yesterday at the New Britain general hospital two hours after an ambulance had taken him there.

Sullivan was tamping home a charge of dynamite in a quarry in Plainville, using a slender 10-foot pole about an inch in diameter, when the dynamite let go.

Sullivan was found with a four-foot piece of the tamper piercing his neck. He was unconscious but breathing, and fearing he would expire immediately if the stick were withdrawn, his fellow workmen sent him to the hospital with the huge skewer still in him.

TEAM DRIVEN BY BOY RUNS OVER AND KILLS HIS BROTHER.

A team of horses, which Harry Zittner, 12 years old, of 2706 Chouteau avenue, was driving through an alley in the rear of 2728 La Salle street, trampled the boy's brother Joe, 8, to death yesterday afternoon.

The team belonged to Thomas Zupan, who was going to haul some furniture for the Zittner family. While Zupan was in the Zittner home, getting the furniture ready, Harry Zittner went out and got in the wagon and started to drive to the rear of his home.

His little brother was in the alley, and Harry was unable to stop the horses in time to save him.

NO INDICATION IN HOLT PAPERS THAT HE HAD ACCOMPLICE

Possessions Seized at Ithaca Consist Largely of Clippings on Murder Cases and Insanity.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Nearly 2000 letters, found among the effects of Frank Holt at Ithaca, have been gone over carefully by the police. It was announced today, and not a single sentence has been found among them to indicate that Holt had an accomplice in his program of terrorism by bomb and assassination.

The letters were written in French, Italian, Spanish, German and English. In one of the letters—from the secretary of Andrew Carnegie—it was learned that Holt had offered to go to China to teach and to take his wife with him as a missionary. He had written that he couldn't do this, however, for $1000 a year, and hoped that Mr. Carnegie "could make it $1500."

Two letters from an aunt of Holt in Leipzig, Germany, were found. So far as could be learned, they contained no reference to Holt's life as Erich Muentner. Other letters showed that Holt had exchanged views on topics of the day and public questions with college presidents. A copy of a letter sent by him to Mrs. Ballington Booth told of Holt's success in having induced a prison official to introduce welfare work in the prison.

The police have established the fact that Holt passed several years in Germany, where he was a student at the University of Berlin. They are confident that while Holt intended to attempt the sinking of liners in midocean he had not had time to attempt such destruction.

There are two files of letters one and a half feet high and numbering into the hundreds, said Guy Scull, secretary to Commissioner Woods. "We have found letters addressed to 'Frank Holt' dated as far back as July, 1906. None of them so far examined contains any reference to the war; none are love letters; none indicate that he was ever married before or involved with any woman. The letters so far read are mainly straight-away business ones and they cover a period extending from 1906 down to the present time."

Clippings on Murder Cases.

One clipping from the Oklahoma State University paper shows that he was instructor there and that he studied in Berlin and lectured, too. The clippings deal with murders and with insanity and the treatment of the insane. One is an editorial showing the danger of over-study.

The clippings are virtually all from Boston and Chicago papers, some from papers of June, 1906 date. Mrs. Muentner was murdered in April, 1908.

"To what place were addressed the letters written in July, 1907?" was asked by Commissioner Woods. "I do not remember that," Scull replied. "Some of the letters refer to a big work of his," he continued. "As near as we could make out it was a thesis on the influence of Shakespeare upon Goethe."

Ancient Vera Cruz Fortress No Longer Military Prison

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The ancient Mexican fortress of San Juan de Ullua, in Vera Cruz harbor, is declared to be no longer a military prison, in a decree issued by Gen. Carranza, which has reached the State Department.

The Constitutional Government says the decree, "will change the use of this Federal structure and devote it to other services of public administration which will make it more worthy while preserving it as a historical monument."

The fortress was built by the Spanish conquerors of Mexico and has a view of the harbor. It was recently Carranza occupied it as his official residence. For years it had been used by Mexican authorities to imprison military and other prisoners.

Minister Von Jagow Complains of Lack of Communication

They were conditioned on the foreign of Great Britain, and the London Foreign Office never replied to the negotiations communicated by the United States. State Department officials made this explanation today in the light of a published statement by Herr von Jagow, the German Foreign Minister, who laid stress on the lack of cable communication as a means of an exchange of views between the American people and the German public during the submarine warfare controversy.

Officials stated that Germany, in a note transmitted by Ambassador Gerard, proposed that the cable between the United States and Germany, which had been cut by the allies early in the war, be reopened and repaired, provided Great Britain consented.

Conditions That Were Suggested.

The following conditions were suggested: "1. That the cable be open for all communications to American embassies and consular officials in Germany and Austria-Hungary."

"2. For private and business messages such as the United States embassy and Berlin deemed proper."

"3. For all news dispatches unencensored."

Germany agreed to pay all expenses in repairing and putting the cable in operation, and President Wilson, if the proposition was accepted by Great Britain, was to be asked to appoint in Berlin and lectured, too. The clippings deal with murders and with insanity and the treatment of the insane. One is an editorial showing the danger of over-study.

ALLIES WILL WIN THE WAR, SAYS POST-DISPATCH MAN WHO TOURED BATTLE FRONT

But When the End Will Come, No One Can Tell, He Declares—Both Sides Preparing Now for Winter Campaign.

By E. Alexander Powell, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

ON THE FRENCH BATTLE FRONT, June 28, via Paris, July 8.—In the last three months I have visited every sector of that great line of battle which stretches its untold length across Europe, from the channel to the Alps, like some monstrous and deadly snake. Not only have I been permitted to see a very great deal which has been denied to others, but I have learned much of what is really happening along that battle line from the officers and men who are holding it. Now I am going back to America. When I reach there people are going to ask me certain questions. As I know perfectly well what these questions will be, I am going to answer them to the best of my ability beforehand.

How long is the war going to last? I do not know. No one knows. Every officer and man with whom I have talked in three armies agrees that the spring of 1916 will see practically no change in the western battle line. What there is to be another winter campaign is a foregone conclusion. Everyone expects it and is preparing for it. Just as they expect another winter. The allies have ordered enormous quantities of winter clothing, and in the Argonne and Vosges the French soldiers are already hard at work building warm and dry winter habitations. I might add that the Germans do not show the slightest sign of weakening.

What is the condition of the British army? It is a new army. It is without experience, and it is without expertized veterans to stiffen it and give it confidence. For the regular army which England sent into France last August has ceased to exist. The old regimental names remain, but the officers and men who composed those regiments are today in the hospitals or the cemeteries.

The losses suffered by the British army in France have been appalling. The West Kent Regiment, for example, has been three times wiped out, three times reconstituted. The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry landed in France 140 strong. Today only 150 remain. The present Colonel of the regiment was a private in the ranks last October. The crying need of the British army at the moment is for trained officers and noncommissioned officers.

Why are the British holding only 40 miles of battle front, as compared with 17 held by the Belgians and upward of 500 by the French? Firstly, because the British army is French ranks, thanks to the universal service law, are filled with men all of whom have had three years with the colors. Secondly, because the British soldier is by far the most difficult portion of the Western battle front to hold, not only because of the configuration of the country, which offers little natural protection, but because it lies squarely athwart the road to the channel ports—and it is the channel ports that the Germans are going if men and shells can get them there. Thirdly, the fighting is of a more desperate and relentless nature along the British front than elsewhere, because the Germans have a deeper hatred for the British than for all their other enemies put together.

Do the French want the United States to enter the war? Generally speaking, they don't care. The Government and the military authorities are afraid that if the United States should enter the war it would result in cutting off the allies' supplies of ammunition. Moreover, they say quite frankly, that in the present state of unpreparedness, they don't see how she could be of any assistance anyway.

Who is going to win? The allies.

What is the condition of the French army? It could not be better. The men are keen as razors and have as much as many of the British. They are well clothed, and afforded every protection that human ingenuity can devise. They seem absolutely confident of ultimate success.

British Submarines Operating in Baltic Sea

LONDON, July 8.—The British Admiralty states that it was officially announced at Petrograd today that the submarine which made a successful attack on a German warship on July 2 in the Baltic was a British boat.

The statement contained the first public announcement intimating that British submarines were operating in the Baltic Sea. It is presumed that the undersea boat passed through the Cattegat from the North Sea to the Baltic and then traveled eastward for 200 miles, as the Bay of Danzig, where the warship was attacked, lies in the southeastern part of that body of water. The distance from the English port to Danzig is about 900 miles.

The Russian official communication announcing that a German warship had been sunk by a submarine said that the battleship, which was of the Deutschland type, was steaming at the head of a German squadron at the entrance to Danzig Bay, July 2, when she was blown up by two torpedoes fired by a submarine.

MRS. EVELYN THAW WILL NOT TESTIFY IN HUSBAND'S TRIAL

Deputy Attorney-General Cook
Abandons Effort to Get
Her as Witness.

THAW ON STAND AGAIN

He Tells About the Killing of Stanford White and Accuses
Mrs. Merrill of Perjury.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Harry K. Thaw, in the course of his second day's testimony today in the trial to determine whether he has recovered his sanity, told the story of how he killed Stanford White and denied that he had ever paid Susan A. Merrill large sums of money to "keep secret the names of certain persons." He said he had shot White after he saw him move his hand toward his pocket.

Thaw spoke in a low tone and appeared to be composed. Once or twice he answered his cross-examiner sharply. He referred to the alienists who testified for the State at habeas corpus proceedings as "bug doctors."

Deputy Attorney-General Cook announced at the opening of the afternoon session that he would abandon his efforts to bring Evelyn Nesbit Thaw here to testify. Cook said it had been reported to him that Mrs. Thaw was too ill to make the trip here from Chateau Guy Lake and withstand the ordeal of testifying.

Accuses Mrs. Merrill of Perjury. Many questions were asked Thaw about his relations with Clifford W. Hartridge, a lawyer who was a member of his counsel once, and Mrs. Susan A. Merrill. He said: "Mrs. Merrill committed perjury in 1908 and 1909; just as she did here three days ago."

"Did you," asked Deputy Attorney-General Cook, "pay or cause to be paid to Mrs. Merrill $25 a week over a long period of time?" "I don't believe I did."

"How much did you pay her altogether?" "Between $300 and $500."

Questioned About Killing White. Thaw was asked whether he believed himself to have been insane at the time he killed Stanford White.

"That," said the witness, "is a question that cannot be answered by one word. The question came up and the jury gave me the benefit of the doubt. In effect they evidently believed there might have been a chance that my reason was not all that it should be."

In reply to further questions, Thaw gave correctly the date of the murder. He did not remember just what he did all that day, but he did remember that he had carried a revolver. He said he had been informed that "Monk" Eastman, a New York gang leader, was after him.

Cook asked Thaw a series of questions dealing with events on the night of the murder. Thaw detailed his actions from dinner time until he fired at White. He denied that he had ever called White a "red gorilla." He said he wrote that phrase after he had once copied it from a letter written by a clergyman.

GIRL HURT WHEN AUTO HITS POLE IN AVOIDING COLLISION

Her Stepmother Turns to Sidewalk as Car Bearing Manufacturer and Police Officer Turns Then.

ELISE GARESCHE, 12 years old, of 5623 Clemens avenue, was injured at 10:25 a. m. today when her stepfather, J. Stands Finkenbinder, president of the St. Louis Police Association, was driving his automobile into a telephone pole at Twelfth and Benton streets, in avoiding a collision with another machine driven by Herbert D. Condie, president of the Condie-Bray Glass and Pottery Co.

A policeman of the North Market Street Station was with Condie in his machine, having accepted Condie's offer of a ride to the station, at Tenth and North Market streets.

Condie was running east on Benton street and Finkenbinder north on Twelfth street.

Neither driver saw the other until it seemed too late to prevent collision. As a desperate resort, Finkenbinder returned sharply toward the sidewalk and his machine struck a telephone pole. Miss Gareusche, who was in the front seat, was thrown from the car and her head struck the fender. Her injury is not serious.

$100 FINE FOR HUGGING WOMAN

Man, Because Too Demonstrative

Arnold Topps, of 3209 Pennsylvania avenue, was fined $100 and costs in police court by Judge Hogan today for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Mammie Wiedner of 6118 Alabama avenue by hugging her on a street car.

Mrs. Wiedner testified that she had known Topps at school but had not seen him for years. She was on a Broadway car June 28. He boarded the car and sat down beside her and hugged her. She broke away from him and ran to the front platform and asked the motor-man to let her off. He refused, she said, and she had to remain on the car until a policeman boarded it. Then she and Topps arrested. Topps, in court, denied everything.

369,151 RATS KILLED IN YEAR

New Orleans' Record in War on Plague—Only 244 Infected.

NEW ORLEANS, July 9.—Since Federal authorities took charge of the bubonic plague situation here and began a year ago a campaign against rats, 369,151 rodents have been killed, according to a report made public today by Dr. R. H. Creel of the United States Public Health Service. Only 244 rodents were plague-infected. It was said that the total number trapped, 302,570 were Norway or "wharf" rats. Infected rodents of this species predominated, 219 having been found to be diseased. The last human case of plague was reported on Oct. 2, 1914.

Picnic Pass the Pickles.

Saturday, July 24, being St. Louis' first municipal picnic day in all the city parks, the Park Department, which is getting up a program for the day, hopes nobody will be so un-civil as to take dinner at home that evening. There is grass enough for everybody to sit on, and the birds will be glad to get the fragments of sandwiches and cake that the al fresco diners leave.

But picnic day will mean something besides eating. In fact, the eating will be a minor part. If the athletic and social events of the day go in the manner planned by Park Commissioner Cunliff and his aids. They intend to make the big public picnic the beginning of a more general use-the-parks movement.

$4,629,523 ADDED TO ASSESSMENTS ON THE EAST SIDE

Increases Ordered in Valuation of Real and Personal Property of Corporations.

Fred Warning, Treasurer of St. Clair County, Ill., and ex-officio Supervisor of Tax Assessments, made it known this afternoon that he had increased by $4,629,523 the real and personal assessments of big corporations in East St. Louis and in Stites and Centerville Townships, adjoining that city.

"The corporations over here have not been assessed enough," said Warning. "If they were required to pay their full taxes the small property owners would not have to bear so great a share of the tax burden."

Of the increase ordered by Warning, $1,636,486 is on real estate and $2,993,037 on personal property.

Some of the largest increases in the realty assessments were Granby Smelter Co., $285,000; Wiggins Ferry Co., $12,000; East St. Louis Gas & Coke Co., $185,000; Aluminum Ore Co., $143,000.

The largest increases in personal property assessments are Aluminum Ore Co., East St. Louis & Suburban Railway, Wiggins Ferry Co., Armour & Co., Morris & Co. and Swift & Co., $330,000 each; St. Clair Gas Co., $210,000 and the Aluminum Cooking Utensil Co., $225,000.

Chicago Car Wage Hearing Ends. CHICAGO, July 9.—Arguments in the wage controversy between 14,000 street car employees and the companies were ended before the Board of Arbitration today. The board will begin its deliberations tomorrow and make its award early next week.

Kite-flying Contest by Boys. At Fairground Park, a kite-flying contest between boys of different playgrounds will begin at 10, the decision to count in the playground sports competition. Strings of the same length will be furnished for each kite, and the boy who first gets his kite up to the full length of the cord then gets it down without mishap, will win.

A swimming race, a diving contest, tub races, bicycle races and an evening water carnival are also planned, and the tennis doubles championship sets will be played.

At Forest Park the Mounted District police will have a drill, and the Fire Department handball experts will contest, and a cricket, as well as baseball and tennis, will be played. The fire-casting contingent will give an exhibition of skill in the grand basin, and there will be band music and megaphone detente singing at the Pagoda side.

At Gravois Playground, folk dances, gymnastic contests and races, plain and hurdle, are being planned.

VISCOUNT HALDANE BITTERLY ASSAILED BY LLOYD-GEORGE

Northcliffe Press Also Joins in Attacking What It Calls Plot
to Restore Him to Cabinet.

LONDON, July 9.—The official announcement made by David Lloyd-George, the Minister of Munitions, on July 7 regarding Viscount Haldane, ex-Lord Chancellor and Secretary of War, and the question of the supply of munitions, has started a political sensation in the United Kingdom of the first order and it is being made the most of by the Northcliffe press to prevent what is declared to be an intrigue to get Lord Haldane back into the Cabinet.

Premier Asquith's remarkable tribute to Viscount Haldane, which was read at a meeting of the National Liberal Club, was regarded as paving the way for some attempt of this kind. Although most people take the view that it is inadvisable during the progress of the war to have these personal questions thrust out publicly, a small body of politicians is trying to force a parliamentary discussion.

Sir Henry Dalziel, Liberal member for Kirkcaldy, has given notice that he will ask Premier Asquith in the House of Commons on Monday whether disclosures of the proceedings of a confidential committee of the Cabinet were made with the Premier's authority and it seems as though the Government will hardly be able to avoid a public discussion.

May Give Day to Discussion. Premier Asquith will be asked to grant one day for a full discussion of the charges responsible for deficiency of munitions.

Lord Haldane has kept a complete silence regarding the controversy. Lloyd-George led the attack, which has been taken up by the Northcliffe press, which are operating in complete unison with the Minister of Munitions. It is one of the strangest allusions that the whirling of politics has ever brought about.

Lord Haldane is a great protagonist of the voluntary system, and Lloyd-George, smarting under his recent failure to stampede the country into conscription, probably considers that Haldane's return to office would balk further efforts in the conscription line.

It is not considered a healthy sign of the stability of coalition when Lloyd-George chooses rather gratuitously to administer a public affront to Haldane, so soon after the latter was the recipient of such praise from Premier Asquith.

In fact, it was a slur on Asquith as well as Haldane, giving a fresh color to the stories of an alleged intrigue to get Asquith out of the premiership, which, however, is believed to have no more chance of succeeding now than when tried three weeks ago.

The Northcliffe press publishes an appeal which it urges its readers to sign and send to the Government, protesting against the readmission of Viscount Haldane to the Cabinet.

The Daily Mail this morning started a campaign in favor of forming what it calls a "People's Committee" composed of business men of high reputation who never have been connected with Parliament or party journalism, with powers to call for evidence and report to Parliament as to "What Servants of the State, by whose negligence or incompetence the fate of the empire has been endangered are still holding office under the Government."

Resignation May Come. The Daily Chronicle says: "In some quarters it is rumored that if Major-General Stanley von Donop, Master-General of Ordnance, does not resign, David Lloyd-George will, and that if Major-General von Donop does, Field Marshal Lord Kitchener also will go."

The controversy has also developed the fact that the mysterious Cabinet Munitions Committee was headed by Lord Kitchener.

The Daily News declares that more than 20 Liberal members of Parliament have signed a tribute to Lord Haldane for his past services, which will be presented to him next week, and adds:

"The secret history of the quondam Munitions Committee is obviously not the proper subject for a controversy. It is a matter worthy of note, however, that the chairman of the committee was neither Lord Haldane nor Mr. Lloyd-George, but was Lord Kitchener."

CLAUDE F. SCOGGIN. When the bank was organized the elder Scoggins was its bookkeeper, succeeding James J. Long, who became cashier. He took Claude into the bank with him, and when he retired, the job passed naturally to his son.

Claude attended the Caruthersville schools and afterward went to Missouri University. After his college days he married a girl who also had lived in Caruthersville since childhood and who came of a respectable family. They have one baby.

The wife was visiting relatives in San Antonio, Tex., when the recent exposure came. She returned to Caruthersville last night, almost in a state of collapse and has denied herself to her "visitors" Scoggins' mother, a sweet-faced, gray-haired woman, is also completely grief-stricken.

"My head is bowed to the dust in sorrow," she said, yesterday. "This has been a cruel year. Only a few months ago I buried my husband, a man whose good name the faintest suspicion was never whispered. Now this has come. I don't know what has become of the bank's money any more than anybody else."

The mother has offered to help the authorities in every way possible to find out what went with the missing funds. She has pleaded with her son to tell, if he really took it, where it is or what he has done with it.

When a Post-Dispatch reporter saw Scoggins in his cell, he was lying upon a hammock by the side of another prisoner and with a third on a hammock slung above them. He was pale, unshaven, nervous. He talked with what appeared repressed excitement, seeming particularly anxious to know what was being said against him and how the public thought of his affair.

He reproached himself for having made any statements whatever to the officials of the bank and declared that even in the face of what he had said it would be impossible to prove that he had taken any of the money. He denied that he had admitted a shortage, but said he had told there was a "discrepancy" in his accounts.

The reporter had seen a copy of a contract in which Scoggins had agreed to turn over his home, worth about $350, and some other property to certain bank officials who had put up $4000 to keep the capital from being impaired because of the shortage. In this contract there was an express admission that Scoggins was short about $35,000 and it had been signed by him and attested by a notary.

Says He Has No Money. Asked about this, Scoggins said he was lagged by so many questions by the bank's directors that he scarcely paid any attention to the wording of the contract. Attorney Ward afterward denied this. He declared the contract was made on the day after Scoggins had voluntarily admitted a shortage to Cashier Long and agreed that he expected Scoggins to pay the amount before he wrote it into the contract and made it clear that the word used was "shortage" and not "discrepancy."

Scoggins said he expected relatives to provide money for him to fight a prosecution. He denied that he had a dollar of the bank's money or knew where it was or had any accomplice. He admitted there was a shortage but refused to estimate it.

"I am young," he concluded with a laugh. "I want to do the right thing. And as long as there is life there is hope."

Sheriff Shubbsfield yesterday denied all extraordinary privileges to the prisoner. Before that he had been the recipient of food, flowers, books and many visits. Yesterday it was decreed that he should have only the privileges accorded to other prisoners and visitors were denied him.

Ben Ries, 42 years old, of 2755 Cote Brillante avenue, self-styled "Mayor of Butchertown," is at the city hospital with a fractured skull, the result of a fall from a horse at Cote Brillante and Prairie avenue, yesterday afternoon. ## SCOGGIN REFUSES TO TELL WHAT HE DID WITH MONEY

Caruthersville Bank Employee,
Short About $25,000, Says
He Has Nothing Now.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., July 9.—Expert accountants, assisted by a State bank examiner last night began checking up the records of the Peoples' Bank here for the last five years to unravel the system used by Claude F. Scoggins, assistant cashier, who has admitted discrepancies in his accounts amounting to around $25,000. The work is expected to take several weeks, for the account of each depositor will have to be examined.

This has been made necessary by the system of bookkeeping employed at the bank. This method, in its essentials, was simply each evening to compare the cash on hand with the day's deposits and withdrawals. The result is that in the face of an entirely protected $22,600 and a confessed shortage of $23,000, it is impossible in many instances to say which checking accounts have suffered.

The gloom over Caruthersville is apparent even to a stranger. Business men not directly concerned are afraid, coming on the heels of the looted Peninsula County bank scandal, it will "hurt the town." Officers of the bank wander about the streets discussing the affair mournfully and wondering what on earth could have become of the money.

Vice President Near Breakdown. Dr. W. A. Crockett, vice president and one of the organizers of the institution, through whom many of his former friends in Montgomery were induced to buy stock, has been brought to the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Although the bank is solvent and the depositors seem to be wholly protected, the institution probably will remain closed for some time and in the hands of a special agent appointed by the State Banking Commissioner. When it is reopened it probably will be reorganized into a national bank.

Although Scoggins professes to believe he will get out of jail on bond in a few days, even his friends say they do not know where he will find bondsmen. Two business men have agreed to go bail for him if he will tell what he did with the money. Scoggins persists, however, in his declaration, that he hasn't a dollar of it and doesn't know for what he spent it.

"If Scoggins had denied he took the money," said J. L. Ward, attorney for the bank, today, "half the men of Caruthersville would have been eager to go on his bond. Indeed, I scarcely would have believed him guilty myself if he had not confessed. Both he and his father before him have had unimpeachable reputations for integrity, and Claude has lived in Caruthersville all his life. But in our minds his refusal to give any account of what he has done with the money, after his confession that he took it, is of sinister significance."

Sympathy for Family. While indignation against Scoggins is general in the town, public sympathy for members of his family is keener than ordinary in such cases. His father, who died last March, was for many years a sort of father confessor to the business men of the city. He was an expert accountant, and whenever a firm desired an audit of its books he was called upon. It was his custom, before going over accounts, to give business advice to his employers. He would frankly tell them, for instance, that they were paying too much for one commodity or charging too much for another; that one system of management was poor and another was good. Almost invariably his advice was heeded.

In the course of time his honesty became proverbial. His son, Claude, seemed to be following in his steps, as he was quiet, orderly in his personal habits and so conservative in his expenses that his friends jestingly accused him at times of being "tight."

When the bank was organized the elder Scoggins was its bookkeeper, succeeding James J. Long, who became cashier. He took Claude into the bank with him, and when he retired, the job passed naturally to his son.

Claude attended the Caruthersville schools and afterward went to Missouri University. After his college days he married a girl who also had lived in Caruthersville since childhood and who came of a respectable family. They have one baby.

The wife was visiting relatives in San Antonio, Tex., when the recent exposure came. She returned to Caruthersville last night, almost in a state of collapse and has denied herself to her "visitors" Scoggins' mother, a sweet-faced, gray-haired woman, is also completely grief-stricken.

VILLA DEFEATED BY CARRANZA NEAR AGUASCALIENTE

Consular Advice Say Northern Leader Is Retreating From Ten Miles South of Town.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Gen. Villa has been defeated by Carranza troops, miles south of Aguascalientes and is retreating north, according to consular advice, dated last night, from Aguascalientes. The message was brief and indicated that telegraphic communication probably would be interrupted north of Aguascalientes within a few days. No details were given.

The Carranza Agency's advice relating to the same battle said: "Villa's crippled army is retreating from Aguascalientes, with a view to making a new stand against the triumphant advance of the Constitutionalists at Zacatecas. Villa has only about 800 or 700 men, all told, remaining to him. It also said that in the fight at Penuela he lost what little artillery remains to him after the successive defeats at Penuela and near Leon."

Officials were discussing informal today the possibility of President Wilson taking further steps to bring about a restoration of peace in Mexico. The discussion was based on reports from the United States Consulate in the northern part of Mexico, pleading that decisive action to bring peace and tranquility to the Southern republic be taken within a month.

Kansas Leaves $4465 to Go Into Common Treasury.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 9.—Notice was received at the State Treasury today that the Kansas common school fund is the sole heir to the estate of Arthur Stockman, a farmer of Osborne, Kan., who died last week.

The notice, as from the executor of Stockman's estate, who stated that the sum of $4465.75 remains. The bequest will be placed in the common school fund, which is invested in county and municipal bonds.

KILL COCKROACHES!

Easy Matter to Exterminate These Dirty Pests.

Even a feeble imagination can think of the germs the cockroach must bring as it crawls around the kitchen and pantry, contaminating and spoiling food. Now is the time to kill off the cockroaches and free your home from the repulsive insects. A dozen cockroaches killed now is better than killing hundreds later.

A two-ounce box of Stearns Electric Paste which you can get for twenty-five cents from any druggist will rid your home of cockroaches as water bugs. It is much better than powders, as it can not blow away and get into the food. Easy to use and an absolute exterminator. Directions in fifteen languages in every package.

COMPLETE TRANSLATION OF REVENTLOW'S ATTACK ON U.S.

Article Was Published in Deutsche Tages Zeitung May 8, After President Wilson's First Lusitania Note.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The Sun today prints a translation from the Deutsche Tages Zeitung of May 8 of an article by Count Ernst von Reventlow, its military expert, in which he gives vent to a vitriolic attack upon the Government and the people of the United States with regard to President Wilson's first Lusitania note. Only brief excerpts from Count Reventlow's article were cabled to this country at the time.

The Tages Zeitung has been suspended since by the German Government because of its continued hostile attitude toward the United States. The Berlin authorities have been painstakingly careful not to let copies of this and certain other papers go beyond the German border lines, because they feared that a wrong impression of the German sentiment might be created in neutral countries.

Count Reventlow's Complaint.

The following is a translation of Count Reventlow's article in full. The lines in "bold face" were printed in that type in the original:

"We are singularly impressed by the fact that the French Havas Agency finds itself in a position to publish the text of the American note which only three days ago was handed to Berlin and the publication of which in Germany did not occur until today."

"As to the main points of the note there can be no doubt whatever, namely, as to the fact that the Government of the United States issues the brusque demand to the Government of the German empire to discontinue the submarine warfare against British commerce. 'The fact' is emphasized that 'the objection to their present method of attack against the trade of their enemies lies in the practical impossibility of employing submarines in the destruction of commerce without disregarding those rules of fairness, justice and humanity which all modern opinion regards as imperative. Manifestly submarines cannot be used against merchantmen, as the last few weeks have shown, without an inevitable violation of many sacred principles of justice and humanity.'

"The Government of the United States waves aside with perfect disregard the German war zone declaration, given on Feb. 4 and explicitly repeated in the subsequent exchange of notes; the warning of our embassy in the American press are reprehensibly disregarded as 'surprising irregularities,' and the note further makes it clear, in the tone of a very dissatisfied superior, that the German Government vainly search for excuses or ameliorating circumstances or for a minimization of its responsibility."

"The Government of the United States takes the liberty to presuppose this excuse for the German Government: That the submarine commanders had acted against the orders of their superiors. 'Thinly Veiled Threat of War.'"

"The American Government emphasizes this: That the German Government need not believe that the satisfaction and the good will of Washington could be regained by regrets or apologies or reparations; nor need the German Government think that the Government of the United States would fail to resort to action in order to safeguard the interests, etc."

"It is simply a thinly veiled threat of war."

"On the other hand, the American Government demands from Germany 'a measure' which would wipe out the bad impressions and again justify the attitude of the German Government with regard to the sacred rights on the seas. 'Anyone who reads this note with an unbiased mind cannot help gaining the impression that Great Britain's Ambassador in Washington was not far away when it was drafted. One can quite as easily imagine the text, so far as it treats of the matter itself, to be a speech by Mr. Asquith in the British House of Commons."

"The American Government, in the tone of deep disapproval, demands the discontinuance of our submarine war against British commerce. It emphasizes its non-recognition of the German specification of certain waters as constituting a war zone."

"We take the liberty to call the attention of the American Government to the fact that the declaration of a war zone is not a German invention, but that the British admiralty was the first to declare certain seas to constitute a war zone, that besides it laid a tremendous mine field in the open sea, thereby closing the 'sacred seas.' The American Government has no objection of consequence to register against these British measures hitherto unheard of."

Accuses Great Britain.

"And now, after the German submarine warfare against British commerce has lasted three months, after the British Government, through the swindle with neutral flags and insignia, through the arming of all merchantmen, fishing steamers, etc., through the order to these boats to attack German submarines at every opportunity, has frivolously endangered neutral shipping in the highest degree, now the American Government demands that the German Empire shall discontinue the submarine warfare because the Lusitania was destroyed."

"Incidentally, the steamship Gulf-Flight mentioned in the note, was not destroyed by a submarine, but by a mine."

"With this part of the note, too, it is conspicuous that the note breathes all the British conceptions and untrue statements. How can the American Government maintain, for instance, that the Lusitania was a harmless merchant vessel?"

"As for the rest, we confine ourselves today to this statement of facts: 'The submarine warfare of the German empire against British commerce is neither play nor a shy attempt with the mental clause that if the United States should resent it it would quickly 'cease.'"

"Our submarine warfare is a means to which Great Britain has forced us by her closing of the North Sea in violation of international law, by her total disregard of all international conventions by her war of starvation against the German people."

"The German submarine war was not an improvised thing. It was planned long before we started it. Since the 10th day of February it has been carried on and it will be continued—and not as a bluff, but to achieve further successes and as many successes as possible, too."

All Consequences Considered.

"The American demand, yes, the fact that such a demand was at all made, does not manifest a high estimation of the firmness, the dignity and the consciousness of responsibility of the German Empire."

"A Government that once has made such a decision will not be moved by any power on earth to cancel it, the less so inasmuch as right is on its side and the entire German people stands as a unit behind it. When it made the decision it knew what it was doing and had considered all possible consequences."

"The fury in England shows better than anything else that the submarine war is successful and it hits John Bull's vulnerable spot. And that is what counts."

"As has been said so many times in these columns, the United States does not know what a great nation's battle for existence means. If they cannot comprehend it, we cannot help them."

"The German Empire will and must go its way, and leaves it to the United States to choose other ocean routes than those that lead through the war zone if American citizens have the desire to visit Europe in these times and to observe how the American war material contributes to the prolongation of this bloody war."

REVOLVER'S SAG SAVES HIS LIFE

Policeman Sees It, Arrests Paroled Forger Who Meant to Kill Self.

John Bailey, 31 years old, thought he would rather shoot himself than go back to the Workhouse on a forgery charge. He had been paroled, but his conduct had not been satisfactory to his wife, who lives at 4364 Hunt avenue, and he feared she was about to have him sent back. He had a revolver and five cartridges in his pocket as he walked through Tower Grove Park yesterday afternoon.

A policeman who noticed the suspicious sagging of his clothes accosted him, patted his pockets and arrested him for carrying concealed weapons. Bailey told him of the decision he had reached.

MAYOR IS HOME FROM EAST, SAW LIGHTING PLANTS

Mayor Kiel returned to St. Louis today, after inspecting the municipal electric plants in Cleveland and Toronto, Canada, and visiting several Eastern cities.

"Those Eastern towns are quite lively," quoth he, "but St. Louis is the best city of all. Take Boston, for instance. It is now preparing to submit a $500,000 bond issue to obtain money for improving the streets. Whenever Boston wants to do that it must issue bonds. The St. Louis way is much better. We go ahead and do the work and assess the cost against the benefited property owners. In many ways St. Louis' charter is superior to those of other cities."

Mayor Kiel said he did not desire to commit himself as to the advantages of municipal electric light plants.

MAJOR ASKED TO SPARE SPOUSE, SLAYER OF WIFE

B. L. Matthews of Clayton, chief counsel for William Sprouse, under sentence to hang next Friday for the murder of his wife, Anna Sprouse, sent to Gov. Major a petition signed by many St. Louis County residents asking that sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

A stay of execution also is asked on the ground that because of his poverty Sprouse was unable to get the attendance of 12 or 15 East St. Louis alibi witnesses.

In his letter to the Governor Matthews says that he, Mrs. Serge L. Halman of Webster Groves and others desire in which to look up these witnesses. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph says he had never before heard of the alleged East St. Louis witnesses.

Ralph says he had detectives and East St. Louis policemen run down all of Sprouse's assertions as to his whereabouts on the night of the killing and if they had found any witnesses to support Sprouse's alibi those witnesses would have been summoned by the State.

FATHER-IN-LAW KILLS PLANTER AFTER ABDUCTING YOUNG WIFE

SHAW, Miss. July 9.—J. C. Harris, a planter near here, was shot and killed early today by his father-in-law, Homer Wilson of Greenwood, Miss., after Harris had chased him four miles, while Wilson kept Harris' 13-year-old wife between him and her husband as a shield. Harris married Wilson's daughter a year ago, and today Wilson abducted her from home by placing her beside him on a horse.

Chas. Stix
President, St. Louis, Mo.
Says:—

Thrift is an indication of civilization because it recognizes the necessity of forethought and the obligations of family ties. Good government recognizes the value of thrift and protects savers by regulating savings banks. Consequently, we have confidence in savings institutions. In India silver and gold are created, and are as if still buried in the earth. When placed in banks, savings may be called for by the depositor who receives an increment for the use which society has made of his deposit in the meanwhile. Thus one who has a savings account benefits society, as well as himself and his family.

"Alternating heat and chill in the atmosphere, with excessive rain, seems rapidly to sap the vitality of the infants whom we are striving to save," said Secretary Mortland of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, to the Post-Dispatch today.

Four Little Girls Who Are Working to Save the Babies

patch today. "We have more bad cases than usual on hand now, and the average of them is running ahead of previous years. The popular idea is that the cool weather is more favorable for ailing and weak infants than is the warm, but the kind we are having, physicians say, and demands upon us bear them out, aggravating the disorders which attack the little ones in the summer. The situation is made more acute, of course, by the greater prevalence of destitution arising from lack of employment for the bread winners of families in crowded districts."

Realization of conditions would seem to be keen among the children of St. Louis, for activity in the raising of relief funds prevails in every direction. The army of workers is being steadily recruited, reports including scores who are engaged for the first time. With the addition of such zealous aid, the Free Ice and Pure Milk Circle of King's Daughters is conducting on the sixth floor of the Grand-Leader, Sixth street and Washington avenue, for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. The picture spectacle, with its wealth of illumination, can be witnessed for only 5 cents, thus affording opportunity for intimate acquaintance with one of the world's greatest evils and at the same time aiding a cause of universal and powerful appeal.

Assisting the King's Daughters who are giving undivided attention to the enterprise are 26 boys and girls, through whose personal efforts hundreds of persons have been directed to the rare entertainment. These little workers are Josephine Provashnik, Margaret and Marie Murphy, Clara Lockhart, Marion Townsend, Veda and Beryl Hicks, Rose and Virginia Cronk, Marguerite and Ruth Bremer, Lawrence Herron, Billy Cronk, Wirt Hicks, Harry Knapp, Davis Pittman, Colman and Myer Hirsch, Glenn, Boyd and Boogher Hill, Lann Boogher, Lawrence Hawkins, Herbert Koch and Guernsey and Junior Taylor.

Four Little Girls Sell Lemonade. For three days four little girls of Thomas street conducted a lemonade stand at Garrison avenue and Thomas street, receipts totaling $4.15. This was their first effort in behalf of needy babies, but they assured the Post-Dispatch they would be among the campaigners so long as they were able to render assistance to the cause. The girls are Minnie Cohn, Henrietta Kaiser, Cecilia Russie and Ellen Shatz.

Hannah Suman of 381 Thomas street, who recently came here from New York, was interested in the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund through hearing some of her neighbors discussing plans for a play which they were to present for the benefit of the poor babies, and she set about rendering assistance through personal solicitation of funds, the result being $4.15.

Eight little children residing in the 456 block of Morgan street produced a three-act play, in which were interspersed songs, recitations and an impersonation of Charles Chaplin, the latter by Lester Shantz. Those who participated were Ethel Porter, Vera Glatt, Annabel Mykies, Thelma and Grant Clark, Ellen and Dorothy Creel. The children are now arranging for the conduct of a lemonade stand to increase the amount realized from their dramatic enterprise.

Their Third Season. For the third season, Ruth and Harold Kurlander of 437 Cook avenue, conducted a lemonade stand for the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, the yield being $3.90. These dependable little friends of the babies stated that they would be heard from again before the summer's end.

Harvey W. Salmon of 13 South Euclid avenue, and George S. Moore of 451 Forest Park boulevard, both of tender age, succeeded in raising 50 cents for the fund, this being their first endeavor in that direction. They did it through sales of lemonade.

It is frequently the case that numbers of girls unite in an effort for the fund, and in many instances there are boys and girls interested in the work, but not often is found any considerable number of boys working alone for the cause. Six of the little ones living in Cote Brillante, undertook an entertainment unaided by girls, and produced $3 on an admission fee of 1 cent for children and 5 cents for grown-ups. They presented a series of slides in a picture display, with which they combined singing. The entertainment was given in the home of Roy Schaefer, 130 Cote Brillante, one of the active workers, the others being Jacob and Albert Hornecker, 534 Cote Brillante, Wesley Wells, 439, Harold Kurlander, 550, and John Morris, 532 Cote Brillante. They intend to repeat their performance soon.

'FRIENDLY' SUIT CHARGES FRAUD TO DR. PALMORE

Christian Advocate Co. Claims Property Late Editor Willing as Own to College.

The late Rev. Dr. William Beverly Palmore, editor and prohibition speaker, conveyed to himself, five years ago, the property of the St. Louis Christian Advocate Co., according to allegations in a suit filed yesterday afternoon in the interest of minority stockholders of the publishing company.

The Rev. Arthur Mather, now associate editor of the Advocate, explained in an interview that the suit was a "friendly" proceeding. However, the words "friendly" and "fraudulently" are applied, in the petition, to Dr. Palmore's transactions.

Dr. Palmore died July 5, 1914, and his will conveyed the property at 504 Washington avenue to Central College, for Women, Lexington, Mo. He directed that the income should be used by the college in teaching domestic science and practical housekeeping and home-making.

The petition, which was prepared by Attorney Henry S. Caulfield, alleges that this property did not rightfully belong to Dr. Palmore, but to the publishing company, and that the college should therefore be required to restore it to the company. The college has been asked to do this, the petition says, but has refused.

The petition states that the publishing company acquired the Washington avenue property seven years ago, and that for nearly five years before his death, Dr. Palmore was the only director of the company, other directors having died. The other stockholders, it is stated, were Martha E. Henderson, "nominal secretary," who held a half-share of stock given her by Dr. Palmore, and Miss Amy Donnan, who had 112 1/2 shares, one-fourth of the whole issue of stock. The petition says that Miss Donnan, being inexperienced in business, trusted the management of affairs wholly to Dr. Palmore.

On April 13, 1910, the petition charges, Dr. Palmore, "in violation of his rights and duties, fraudulently, and without knowledge of the other stockholders, caused to be drawn up a purported warranty deed, conveying this real estate from the company to himself."

OLD TRAILS ROAD ENTHUSIASTS MEET IN KANSAS CITY

Delegates Discuss Plans to Complete Cross-State Automobile Highway.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 9.—A campaign to give Missouri its first permanent highway across the State within a year was opened at the Commercial Club rooms here this morning. It was called to order by Judge J. M. Lowe, president of the Old Trails Association. Many delegates from towns along the Old Trails Highway were present. They include Mayors, Commercial Club committees, editors, representatives of County courts and other road boosters. Nearly every town, even the smallest, had somebody at the meeting.

"This will be the most important road meeting ever held in the middle west," said Judge Lowe. "The meeting is just the start of a campaign that won't end until every foot of the Old Trails Highway across the State is built of rock or other permanent material."

The most important single proposition to be taken up by the meeting will be that of using convict labor in building portions of the highway. There are 700 unemployed convicts in the State prison. State Road Commissioner Buffum will confer with the road convention about putting them to work.

There were 30 boosters from Saline County, 20 from Cooper County and 30 from Howard County present. Committee of the Commercial Club and the City Council of Columbia added to the throng that filled the clubrooms. The delegation from Lexington numbered 80. Judge Lowe read to the convention a letter from former Gov. Hadley at Denver, Colo., in which he expressed his interest in the road campaign and emphasized the value of a rock cross-state highway.

G. A. Radford, president of the Bank of Saline at Marshall, came to the meeting with 25 other boosters from Marshall.

"There has been a revolution in the sentiment toward rock roads," Radford said. "Five years ago anybody who talked about spending money for such a purpose was looked upon as a crank. Today the man who does not believe in rock roads is the exception."

That the plan of building the road with convict labor is essential to be adopted and will prove successful was the prediction of State Highway Commissioner Buffum.

"The State is ready, the Prison Board is ready and the counties are ready," Buffum declared. "The men themselves are eager to see the plan put through, because it means outdoor work, better conditions and the possibility of a parole. It has been shown that on road work convicts perform from 15 to 25 per cent more labor than other workers. At the same time, it is cheaper labor. The county pays only the board of the men and the salaries of the guards."

If hard to please, you'll find Saline skin cream and Saline skin powder. Try them.—ADV.

Society

A NUMBER of guests from out of town have arrived for the wedding of Miss Carol Davis, formerly of Houston, Tex., to Lawrence Levy of Memphis, Tenn., which will take place Sunday at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Morris Jacobs of 524 Washington boulevard, with whom she has made her home.

The arrivals are Mrs. Julius Levy of Memphis, who was formerly Miss Ida Stein of St. Louis; Mrs. Henry Solomon of Helena, Ark., and her little daughter, Miss Janet Ida Solomon, who will be flower girl; Mrs. J. ## Marlborough-Blenheim.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

THE LEADING RESORT HOUSE OF THE WORLD

Capacity 1100

The great essential of a resort hotel, as distinguished from a city hotel, is ample public space devoted to the use of its guests, in the form of bright and airy Exchange, Lobbies, Parlors, Galleries and Solariums, affording pleasing vistas and beautiful promenades, the whole combining into a harmonious vision of grandeur and beauty, while replete with the cozy group seclusions of home, and yet affording full view of the pleasing panorama of the resort life. In this essential the Marlborough-Blenheim stands without an equal in Atlantic City or elsewhere.

Its "Ownership Management," while accounting for its unique reputation, is a guaranty of the high character of its patronage and the unexcelled quality of its service and cuisine. It employs only white service in both its American and a la carte dining rooms.

It makes a specialty of its high-class music every evening throughout the year, with special Sunday night solo features. Roman, the world's highest Tenor, of Venice, is engaged to sing at frequent intervals during July, August and September. Atlantic City, with its only real convention (Europe) this year impossible, is offering unusual attractions and entertainments. Two living hosts are daily sources of interest. Two golf courses for the Varsity Club, the famous West and the wonderful bathing beach attract their respective devotees, while the river amusements, the Boardwalk, the fine motor roads and the splendid hotel and restaurants, afford enjoyment to all. There is only one Atlantic City, and the summer is a particularly attractive. Write for illustrated booklet and rates.

PUBLIC DEFRAUDED BY SHORT WEIGHT, FALSE MEASURES

Correction of Condition Here
Lags While Other Cities Conduct Honesty Crusades.

While other large cities are vigorously prosecuting merchants who give short weights and measures, an investigation by the Post-Dispatch discloses that virtually no effort is being made along that line in St. Louis.

It is impossible to estimate accurately how much St. Louisans are defrauded of annually by dishonest hucksters and scalekeepers, as there is no basis for making such estimates, but James W. Griffin, Supervisor of the Bureau of Weights and Measures, believes the amount is at least several hundred thousand dollars a year.

The fault lies with an inefficient system of weights and measures inspection. This inefficiency was admitted by Supervisor Griffin and by Director of Public Safety Swingley, when a Post-Dispatch reporter asked why the Bureau of Weights and Measures confiscated so few scales and measures.

The bureau, last year, confiscated 27 scales and 240 measures. Investigation in other cities by the Post-Dispatch revealed that this is a surprisingly small number in comparison with the confiscation in other cities. Boston, with a population less than that of St. Louis, confiscated 1199 scales and 10,438 measures; New York confiscated 1287 scales and 10,838 measures.

The crusade against false weights and measures in New York, Boston and San Francisco is conducted so thoroughly and successfully that the motion picture operators take pictures of the casting of confiscated scales and measures into the sea by the authorities in those cities.

Supervisor Griffin told a reporter that frauds, committed by St. Louis hucksters and storekeepers cannot be checked as long as the present system of financing his bureau is continued.

Nine inspectors employed in the Bureau of Weights and Measures. Each year the city appropriates, in advance, the amount estimated to pay the bureau's expenses for the fiscal year. That expense, for the fiscal year ending last April, was $12,410.

But it is the policy of each administration to make the bureau self-sustaining. This is not a legal necessity, but Supervisor Griffin says a failure to equal the financial record of a predecessor would be regarded as an indication of poor administration of the office.

The result is that the efforts of the supervisor and his inspectors are directed almost entirely toward making the bureau self-sustaining. These efforts, in the fiscal year ending last April, resulted in the collection of $14,870 from fees charged for the semi-annual inspection of all weights and measures in the city. Thus the bureau last year made a profit of $2,460 for the city, but it failed to suppress the short weights and measures given by dishonest hucksters and peddlers, which Supervisor Griffin admits amounts to several hundred thousand dollars a year.

The necessity of making the bureau self-sustaining, Supervisor Griffin said, keeps his inspectors busy five days of the week "chasing fees to pay office expenses." The sixth day of the week is devoted to special investigation for frauds. This is the reason so few false scales and measures are confiscated in St. Louis.

The city requires that every measure and scale have the official approval stamp every six months. This means that every scale and measure must be inspected by a city inspector twice each year. For this service the bureau charges a fee ranging from 5 cents for stamping a huckster's small measures to $5 for inspecting railroad scales. From these fees the bureau's revenue is derived.

The work of inspecting these scales keeps the nine inspectors busy five days a week and constitutes what Supervisor Griffin terms the "chasing of fees to pay office expenses." The inspection is perfunctory and it is unusual to discover fraud. Irregularities in scales and in measures, which the dealer himself does not suspect, sometimes are brought to light and corrected.

On Lookout for Inspectors, Supervisor Griffin says, the honest merchant does not conceal his weighing or measuring apparatus and that it is easily available for inspection. The dishonest dealer, he said, is always on the lookout for inspectors, and either conceals his faulty apparatus, substitutes scales that will pass inspection, or corrects the false scales so they will pass inspection and get an official stamp, and immediately thereafter readjusts them to give short weight.

Under such conditions, Supervisor Griffin said, his inspectors cannot make the thorough investigations for fraud that he would like them to make. The result, he said, is that it is probable unscrupulous dealers are escaping detection and are practicing their dishonesty in comparative safety from discovery and prosecution.

The public, Supervisor Griffin declared, can be of invaluable assistance to his department, and co-operate with it, by reporting hucksters and dealers who give short weights or appear to be using false measures.

Director Swingley, under the new charter, has supervision over the Bureau of Weights and Measures. He told a reporter the fee system in the bureau must be abolished before any radical improvement in service could be made.

Steps will be taken next fall, Director Swingley said, to correct the abuses now prevailing in weights and measures. At that time, when the Board of Aldermen is reconvened after vacation, he will prepare a bill modeled after the laws of New York and other cities, to change the weights and measures inspection system.

JOBLESS TIMES FOR "THE BOYS" OF BOTH PARTIES

Republicans Lament Lack of Spoils and Dr. Simon Complains for the Democrats.

REPLY BY McPHEETERS

Police Head Declares That if the Board Played Politics Policemen Would, Too.

While Republican politicians are complaining that "the boys" of their party are getting no chance at the jobs under the city administration, and are begging Mayor Kiel to hobble or hamstring
the Efficiency Board, Dr. John H.
Simon, in newspaper interviews, is protesting against the treatment which
"the boys" of the Democratic party receive from Gov. Major.

The time chosen by Dr. Simon for his lament over lost spoils, is one of profound political peace, not to say the-
-of. The next election is far, far away —in months—and the last election is only a memory—a sad memory for Dr.
Simon and the Democrats. But to Dr.
Simon, every place is a temple, and all seasons summer, for politics. The doctor made a mighty run, two years ago,
for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, and ditched the trim and well oiled machine on which Saunders Nor-well expected to ride to victory in the primaries. In the election for Mayor, all Dr. Simon lacked was the votes—some 250 more of them would have elected him.

Looked After "The Boys."
When Dr. Simon was Health Commissioner under Mayor Wells, he made a record for taking care of "the boys."
The Mayor removed him, but "the boys" remembered him, and no Democratic candidate, in the two elections since he ran for Mayor, has received anything like Simon's vote. For this reason, the doctor thinks himself entitled to tell Gov. Major how "the boys" should be helped at this time.

The police department is the biggest thing, from the standpoint of jobs, that the Governor controls in St. Louis; hence Dr. Simon argues that the way into the department, and into its most desirable positions, should be made easier for "the boys." He blames President McPheeters of the Police Board, an appointee of the Governor, for not having brought this to pass by dropping Chief Young and others who hold the good jobs in the department and putting Democrats in their place.

Reply to Simon's Criticism.
President McPheeters yesterday issued a statement, about the length of a comprehensive diplomatic note, replying to Dr. Simon's criticisms. He said the police law, enacted by Democrats, required the commissioners to take oath that they would disregard politics in appointing and promoting policemen. He said he and the other commissioners were determined to comply with the oath in this respect, and that if the Board started to playing politics, the policemen would also begin playing politics,
to the detriment of the service.

He added that Gov. Major had never attempted to interfere with the Board, to dictate its appointments or its other acts.

Gov. Major, the person with whom Dr.
Simon is chiefly finding fault, has not said a word.

Senator Stone, a few days ago, remarked that there was some truth in what Dr. Simon had said about neglect of "the boys" by the city administration. He added that if the "boys" let the Republicans get into control of the state, they would not get even the little things they are now getting.
Dr. Simon has predicted that, unless "the boys" are recognized, the Republicans will elect the next Governor.

TELLS OF FIGHTING OFF MAN WHO DRAGGED HER FROM AUTO

Young Woman Gives His Name to Police After Walking From Country to Wellston.

Responding to a telephone message that a young woman had been assaulted in the country, a patrolman went to Wellston at 2 o'clock this morning, where he found Miss Anna Leahy, 25 years old, of 1529 Pine street, being cared for by women in the neighborhood. Her face was scratched and her clothes were torn.

She said a man had called at the Union Station restaurant, where she is employed, and invited her to take an automobile ride. They went to the country with two other couples, she said.

On the way back to the city, she said, the man ordered the machine stopped and then dragged her into the weeds at the side of the St.
Charles Rock Road, near Lackland Road. The automobile continued its journey, she said, and her companion knocked her down, but she fought hard and her struggles and screams
finally forced the man to run away.
She made her way to Wellston.

An order for the arrest of the man named by Miss Leahy has been issued.
He runs a service automobile and has a stand near Union Station.

ROAD FORCES AT WORK CLEARING UP STORM'S DEBRIS

Number of Fatalities in County
Remains Four, Two Women,
One Child and One Man.

Residents of St. Charles, and farmers along the Wabash railroad to the west, in the district swept by Wednesday afternoon's tornado, worked today at the big task of clearing away the fallen trees which, for miles through the country and the city, mark the path of the wind's violence.

County road bosses directed the work on the rural highways, and the tree trunks, which were sawed and hewn apart yesterday to permit vehicles to pass, were lined back along the roadside.

Full reports from the tornado district show that four lives were lost in the county, and that no one was injured in the city. Reports of other deaths were not verified, and all those injured are expected to recover.

Two Women and Child Killed.
Those killed were Mrs. Mary Meiner and her daughter Minerva, who were blown from a buggy near O'Fallon; Mrs. Harry Koenig of Wentzville, who was crushed by the falling of her house, and Frank Hunsel, section boss of the Wabash, who was struck by a falling beam at Gilmore in sight of the passengers on a derailed Wabash train.

Mrs. Herman Oberlin, living near Foristell, whose home collapsed while she was inside, was severely injured.
The destruction of the Catholic church of St. Charles Borromeo, which was valued at $70,000, represents about one-half the estimated loss in St.
Charles. Pending plans for the building of a new church, the congregation will use the parish school building, which was not damaged.

Fields of Corn Damaged.
No estimate of the damage to buildings and crops in the county has been possible. In the towns of St. Peter's, Gilmore and Wentzville, houses were wrecked, and through the country, many fields of corn were ruined. The freakish character common to such storms was shown, as some fields, apparently in the direct path of the storm, were undamaged.

Observers of the storm's course in St.
Charles accept the theory, which was set forth in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, that a storm from the southwest and one from the northwest converged and struck the city. The storm from the northwest was the one which struck the county towns, and in those places
the trail of the wind lies all in one direction, while in St. Charles the damage lies in two directions.

Wreck Dead Placed at 12.
NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, July 9.—
After revising the list of dead here and at Toronto, as the result of the wreck on Queenstown Heights, Coroner W. T.
Greenwood last night said 12 had perished. The lists of injured include virtually all of the other 24 passengers who were on the car when it took the leap from the rails.

LAWYERS OBJECT TO CANNED MUSIC THROUGH WINDOWS

Attorneys in New Bank of Commerce Building Complain of Holland Building Firm.

Composing legal briefs to canned music has palled on the lawyers in the New Bank of Commerce Building, so they have asked the Police Department to issue a restraining order against a firm of music publishers in the Holland Building.

Douglas W. Robert, an attorney, invited President McPheeters of the Police Board to his office on the thirteenth floor of the New Bank of Commerce Building for the purpose, Robert said,
of looking over a recent Supreme Court ruling. When they were discussing the ruling the strains of "Night Time Down in Dixie Land" floated in through the windows.

"What's that?" asked McPheeters.
"That's really what I asked you up here for," replied Robert. "That is what the lawyers in this building have to put up with all day long and day after day."

Robert told him that a music publishing house on the fifth floor of the Holland Building had a music machine in one of its windows with a megaphone attachment through which mechanical songs were let loose on the innocent breeze. The space between the Holland Building and New Bank of Commerce Building on the Pine street side being occupied by low buildings there was nothing to prevent the sounds
reaching the offices of the lawyers, Robert said, and as the music did not harmonize with their work they wanted
it stopped.

Subpoena Duces Tecum Suggested.
"Perhaps a habeas corpus or a subpoena duces tecum might serve to remove the cause belli," suggested Mc-Pheeters.

Yesterday the President of the Police Board received a letter from Robert in which the latter said he did not believe his complaint had been taken seriously and that he wanted the police to act
as the music was "playing the devil"
with legal minds.

The letter was turned over to Central District and a sergeant was detailed to visit the music house. He reported back that the publishers said they would see that the lawyers were no longer annoyed.

Knocked Off Wagon, Hurt by Car.
Joseph Gutenberg, 45 years old, of 1902 Carr street, was knocked from his wagon by a southbound street car and fell in front of a northbound car on the Twenty-first street bridge at 7:30 a. m. today. His left foot was crushed. He is at the city hospital.

Stolen Auto Is Recovered.
The automobile of Frank Holbrook, 2801A Greer avenue, was driven away from Prairie and St. Louis avenues about 9 o'clock last night and three hours later was found in front of 1924

Whittier street.
Falls 30 Feet From Tree.
Betin Romano, 25 years old, of 5322

Shaw avenue, employed by the Park Department, when trimming a tree in Forest Park yesterday afternoon fell from a limb 30 feet above the ground.
His two wrists were sprained.

Solace in Solitude

Searchers for solitude should seek the North woods.

You'll find a summer paradise miles from the "tango zone."

You'll be lulled to sleep by the song of the Bob White, the hoot of the owl and bull frog chorus from the lake below the camp.

And start on your trip via the "Noiseless Route." Preparatory to "roughing it" you'll enjoy the luxuries afforded by the service of the

The Time, the Place, the Girl, the Clothes

The Clever Woman Knows the Right Garb for Each Occasion—Lack of Taste, a Wrong Display, mars the General Beauty of a Gathering and Proves Mortifying to One's Hostess.

THE week-end trip is such an established thing that all of us know its pleasures. It is something one always looks forward to with elation. But the anticipation of pleasure should not interfere with the necessary precautionary thought and consequent arranging of the clothes one will wear. Indeed, full appreciation of the pleasures offered cannot be had unless one is appropriately dressed for them—that is, for the woman who is fastidious about her clothes. And, happily, these women usually do plan beforehand, but sometimes find their calculations misplaced and then two days of a whole week's planning can be easily spoiled by her inward uneasiness of mind.

However, there are women of a certain type who, in thinking only of the pleasure in store for them have appeared at places of enjoyment and social functions dressed hopelessly out of taste. Though quite marring the beauty of the assemblage, they seemed not to be aware of it, or in the case of being an invited guest seemed not to appreciate the humiliation of the hostess. Such people, of course, are never invited a second time to one place. They lack the essentials of good manners which spring from a sense of pride—and pride would make a woman plan the appropriate attire, or, if that was impossible, make her to remain away.

As week-ends range anywhere in destination from the seashore, if one is near one, or a tent camp in the woods to a palatial summer home, the right sort of clothes must necessarily depend upon which place one happens to be going. The simpler life of the less formal parties in the woods makes no requirement of Dame Fashion, but where summer gayety abounds a dainty afternoon frock like the one here shown would meet the occasion of garden party, bridge party or afternoon.

A Game of Bluff

The village coquette, the village curate and Dan Cupid each take a hand. In the rubber Dan Cupid wins.

By Harold Carter.

REV. ALOYSIUS BROWN was very busy as he stooped over his asters. They had come up splendidly from seed, and he was wondering when he heard girls' voices upon the porch of his house.

"What a pity the new curate isn't Bowen, the daughter of the wealthiest of his parishioners. I did so want to get him on the new committee this morning."

"And I wanted to see him, too," said the other voice.

Rev. Aloysius was so struck by the quality of the tone that he peeped around the edge of the house, which was uncannily, but perhaps pardonable in a young man of five and twenty. And when he had looked the curate did not regret in the least, for he saw the prettiest girl who had ever come within the range of his vision.

"Why, I thought you just came with me, Maude!" exclaimed Miss Bowen.

"Listen, dear," said the second girl, in whom the curate now recognized Miss Maud Anderson, the beauty of the village. "Mr. Aloysius, the new curate, is telling Mamma the other day that Mr. Brown is a very impressive young man. And so I am determined to impress him. I haven't had a proposal yet."

"O, Maude!" exclaimed the other in awe. "You are never going to practice on the new curate? Leave the poor man alone!"

"It will do him good, Margery," answered Miss Anderson. "And I am working on a pair of slippers for him now, so you can see that my mind is fully made up."

Reverend Aloysius overcame with shame, retreated hastily to the safe shelter of the tool house, from which he watched the girls depart down the street.

The Curate on His Guard.

TO be forewarned is to be forearmed, and the curate resolved to anticipate Miss Anderson's intentions. Accordingly he set to work to counter-mine the enemy's approaches.

The popularity of the new curate was soon assured. All the girls of Freeport vied with each other for his company, but it was soon obvious that Miss Anderson and the curate were devoted to one another. In fact, had the curate not been so obviously simple-minded, the situation would have become scandalous. They were seen walking together, and once the curate drove Miss Anderson to the church committee meeting.

Rev. Aloysius, always on his guard, felt, nevertheless, that if he had not been warned so providentially he would have fallen a victim. Miss Anderson was a girl of character and mind, as well as of beauty. Finally, he began to realize he had almost fallen into the trap which had been laid for him.

It was a warm July afternoon when the two sat side by side outside Mrs. Anderson's house. A hummingbird was flitting among the flowers, there was a sense of mellow peacefulness in the air; everything seemed to indicate the crucial moment had arrived. Miss Anderson's little hand lay invitingly upon her lap. The curate took it.

"Don't you wear rings, Miss Anderson?" he inquired, smiling.

"Not on that finger, Mr. Brown," answered the girl, blushing with confusion as she realized that he was holding the engagement ring finger.

Paid in Her Own Coin.

REV. ALOYSIUS slipped his hand into his pocket and pulled out a diamond solitaire. The girl looked at it and her eyes sparkled.

"I bought this," said the curate, "for the girl I hope to marry. I haven't told her yet. Do you consider that a rash speculation, Miss Anderson?"

"Indeed, you know the proverb, 'None but the brave deserve the fair,'" replied the girl.

"I am going to risk telling her the next time I have a chance," said the curate. "I value your confidence, Miss Anderson, more than I can say. I don't believe I should have mustered up courage to speak to her if you hadn't encouraged me. I hope you two will be the best of friends."

And, raising his hat, he went away, leaving Miss Anderson gasping with humiliation and mortification upon the stoop.

The girl could not conceal her agitation. She ran into the house, and flinging herself on her bed, gave way to angry tears.

She would never speak to the curate again! She would leave the village! She had been deliberately mocked, her love scorned. The girl had quite forgotten her light rivalry with her friend upon that occasion. She had come to feel a deep regard for the young curate. In the room which he occupied in the rectory's house, Rev. Aloysius Brown flung himself down heavily into his chair. Somehow revenge did not taste as sweet as he had imagined it would. And then, he was conscious that he had acted in an unchristian manner.

"Go to her and ask her pardon," said the curate's conscience.

"But I shall make myself laughing stock," urged the curate.

"All the better. It is your duty to make amends. She knew it was deliberate and that you weren't so simple as you pretended to be," said conscience.

"Go to the Bahamas," answered the curate.

"Thanks, but I prefer to remain with you," replied the curate's conscience.

The Curate's Confession.

QUIETLY the curate rose up and went back to Mrs. Anderson's house. It had grown dark, and he had had no supper, but that imperious voice within him would not be restrained. Reverend Aloysius' mind worked quickly, and by the time he had reached the house he had already reviewed what he was going to say and found it satisfactory.

He was going to tell Miss Anderson the whole miserable story from the day when he overheard her remarks to Miss Bowen. He would tell her how he had planned the whole thing, and he did not mean to spare himself. Then he would ask her whether she preferred to let forgiveness enshroud the matter in silence or whether she wished him to leave the village.

"Well?" came a muffled voice, and the curate sat down beside Miss Anderson.

"Miss Anderson," he began, "I have come back to tell you something, to make a confession. I—er—I bought the ring for you and I want to ask you to marry me."

The curate stopped in consternation. Was that his voice? He had not intended to say that at all.

But suddenly he found that Miss Anderson was in his arms, and her head upon his shoulders. And still more amazed, the curate listened to a delicious, chuckling voice deep in his breast.

That was the voice of his conscience.

"The Body of the Nation."

PRESIDENT WILSON, addressing an outdoor audience from the porch of the Treasury Department on Flag day, first paid a tribute to the men who first established our American ideals and then said:

"Let us not forget that the real experience and life of a nation lies with the great multitude of unknown men. They constitute the body of the nation. This flag is the essence of their daily endeavors. This flag does not express any more than what they are and what they desire to be; and as I think of the life of this great nation, it seems to me that we sometimes look to the wrong places for its sources."

"We look to the noisy places, where men are talking in the market places, we look to where men are expressing their individual opinions; we look where men are expressing passion, instead of trying to attune our ears to that voiceless mass of men who merely go about their daily tasks, try to be honorable, try to serve the people they love, try to live worthy of the great communities to which they belong. These are the breath of the nation's nostrils; these are the sinews of its might."

There are no days of special patriotism. There are no days when you should be more patriotic than on other days."

SOME NEW RECIPES

Sardine Sandwiches.—Open a box of sardines (half-box size), take out the fish and drain off every drop of oil by leaving them in a colander for an hour, then spreading on thick paper. Remove the bones one by one, scrape them into bits with knife and fork; work into the picked fish a little chervil pepper, a tablespoon of melted butter and the juice of two lemons; spread the paste between buttered slices of bread.

Rhubarb Meringue Pie.—Stir half tablespoon of flour into 1 cup of sugar, add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and 1 tablespoon of water, mix well, then add 1 heaping cup of finely cut rhubarb. Line a pie plate with rich pastry, fill with the mixture and bake in a moderate oven. Beat the whites of the 2 eggs to a standing froth, add 2 tablespoons of confectioner's sugar and a quarter of a teaspoon of vanilla, spread roughly over the pie when cold, return to the oven and brown delicately.

Mocha Pie.—Two eggs beaten very light, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup unsifted flour, 1 teaspoon cream tartar, 1/2 teaspoon soda, mix, then add 1/2 cup boiling milk with 1 teaspoon butter melted in it, a little salt and vanilla. Mix in order given.

Filling: Quarter cup butter, creamed, 1 cup confectionery sugar, 2 tablespoons strong coffee, 2 teaspoons dry cocoa, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Oatmeal Jelly.—Cook rolled oats 1 hour. Strain, put in a mold. Turn out in a dish. Garnish with whipped cream.

Hard Year for the Philippines.

THE Philippine Islands have had this year one of the best crops in their history, but great hardship has been worked by lack of ships in which to carry hemp and sugar to foreign markets.

Quantities of agricultural products are lying useless in warehouses or on the ground.

Many foreigners are engaged by the Chinese Government in its various departments, either in the customs, railways, postoffices or other branches. According to the latest information, the total is 3048 persons, whose nationalities are as follows: British, 1106; French, 1003; German, 532; Russian, 463; American, 174; Japanese, 207; Italian, 75; Austrian, 59; Belgian, 111; others, 155.

No Use.

THEY'RE using an awful lot of automobiles in the European war," remarked the auto enthusiast. "I know," said the disgruntled pedestrian. "But what good does it do? The manufacturers keep turning the blamed things out faster than those fellows over there can bust 'em up."

Harmony.

I'M going to select new uniforms for my baseball team," said the manager. "Can you suggest anything?" "How about caps of green billiard cloth to match their ivory domes?" said the disgruntled rooter.

"You may have observed," remarked the Man on the Car, "that contributions to the conscience fund are always small."—Toledo Blade.
